The author of the latest Chinese Exclusion law lays the blame for its nonenforcement on the revenue officers. The officers, for their part, blame the Chinese, who will neither register nor have their pictures taken. It's a blamed piece of business all around.

A Norwich, Pa., young fellow has run away with his twenty-year-old stepmother, leaving his seventy-year-old futher to mourn a double loss. It was an unfilial performance. Yet there is this about it, that the son paid a high tribute to his father's judgment in the selection of a wife.

A CASE FOR MERCY.

English justice may be prompt and evenhanded, but there is something brutal about it nevertheless. In the case of criminals in England, justice is never tempered with mercy. An iron system holds them in its grasp and knows no relaxation.

There is doubt about the guilt of Mrs. MAYBRICK, who is now in prison under a life sentence for the alleged murder of her husband. Good people believe her innocent. Certainly, she would never have been convicted here on the conflicting evidence produced at her trial. Efforts have been made by excellent stone wall.
